

BUILDER NOTES

I haven't researched a post in three weeks

I still approve every one before it goes out. The job just moved.

SWIPE

02 · the system

The stack that replaced my Monday mornings

Researcher, writer, editor. Three agents with their own context windows, running in sequence, each one handing off a file instead of a status update.

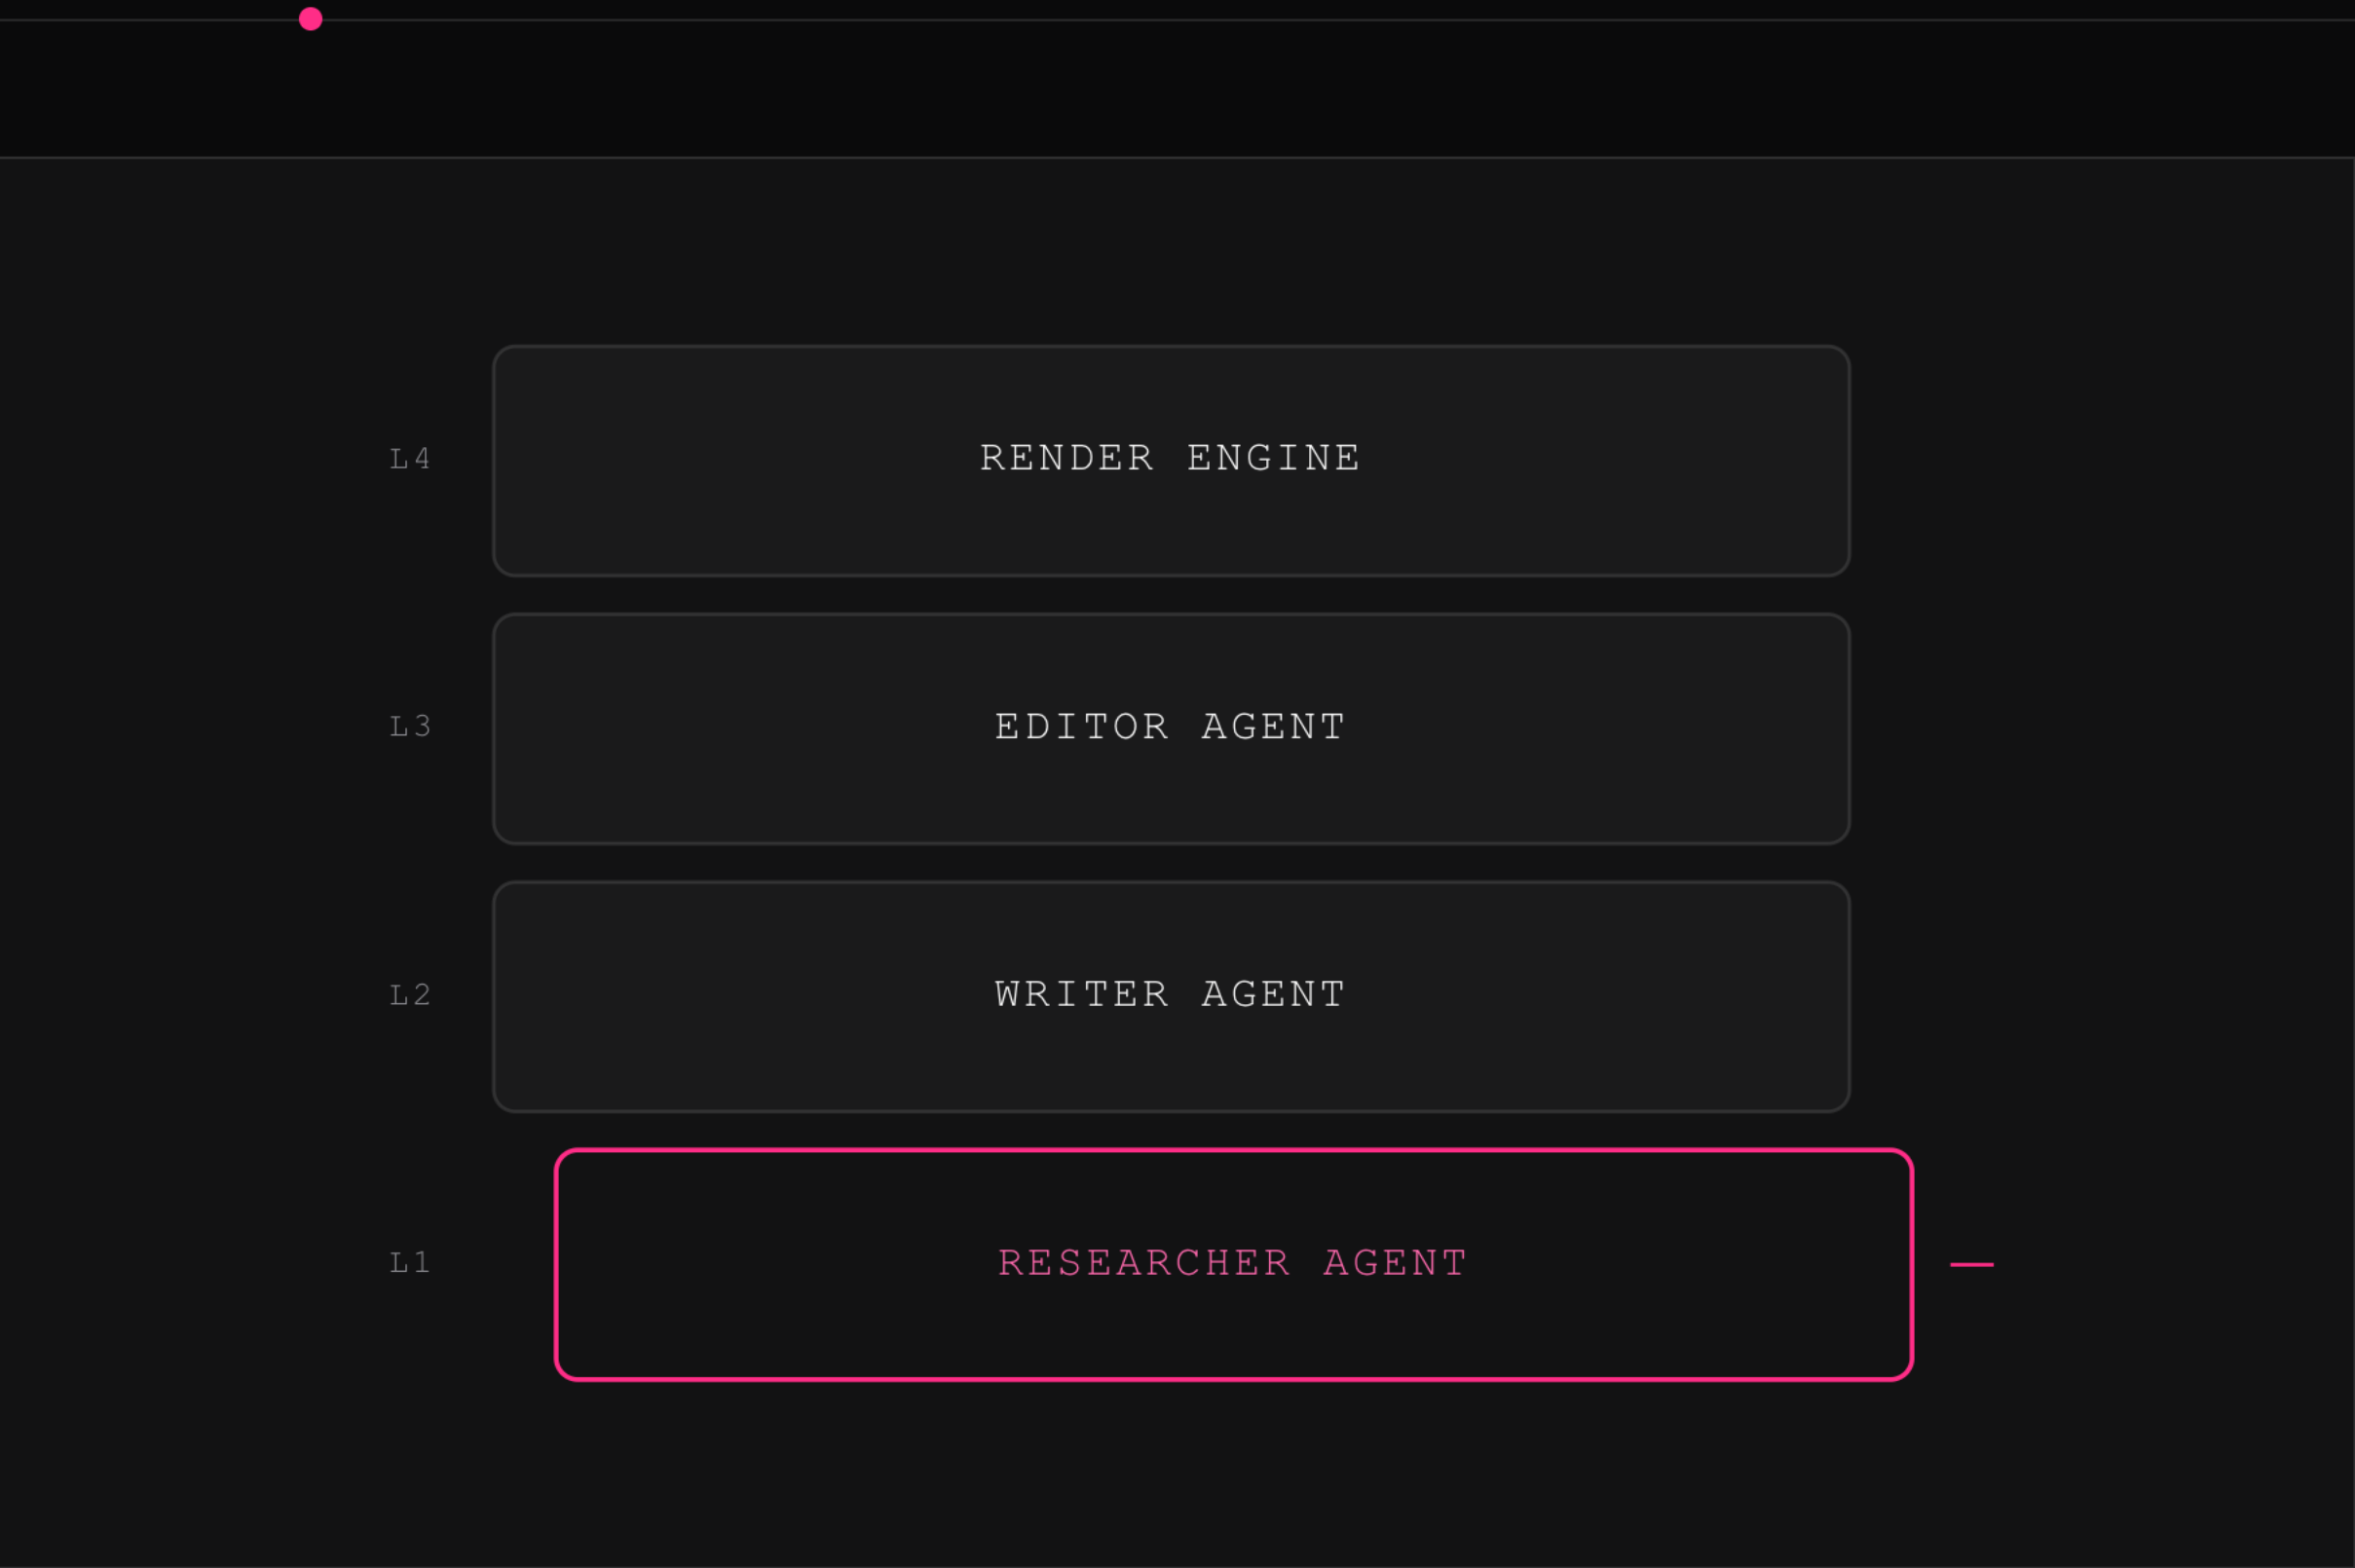

FIG. 2 · VERYDIAN

03 · my part

What I still do with my own hands

Pick the topics. Read every caption before it ships. Catch the one line that sounds like a press release instead of me.

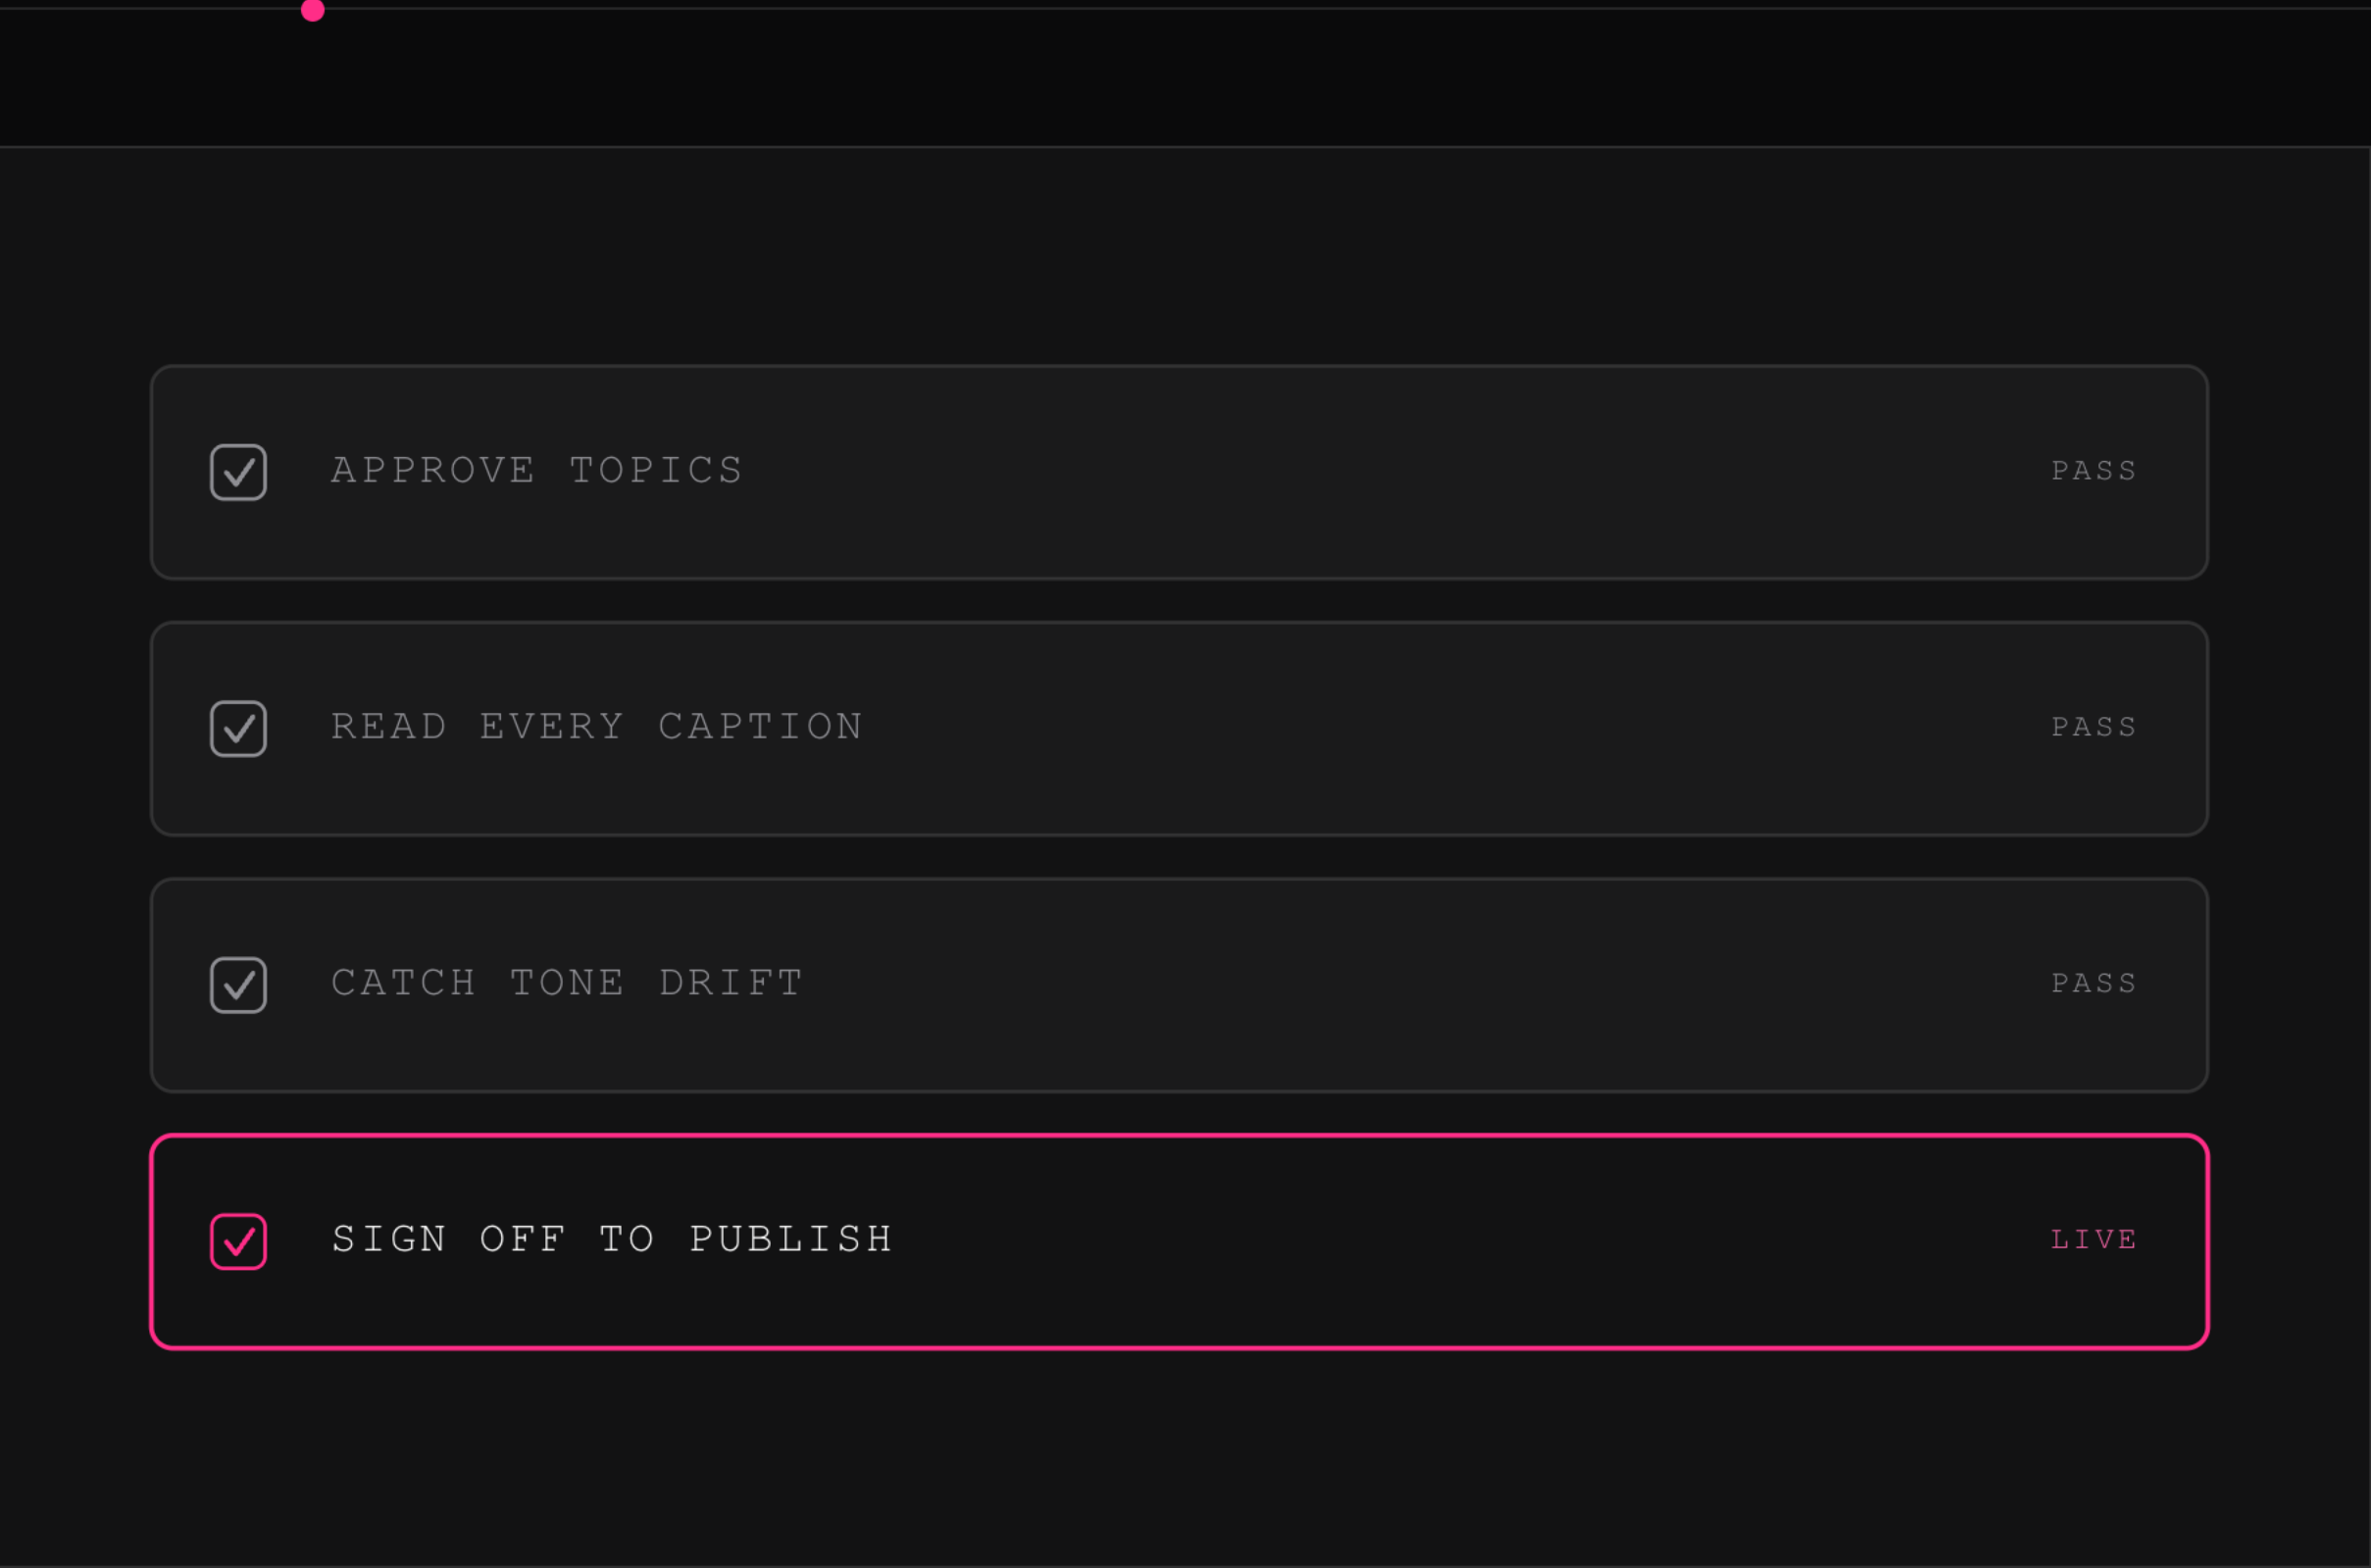

FIG. 3 · VERYDIAN

04 · the shift

Where my hours actually went

Research and drafting used to eat most of the week. Now it's almost entirely review, and review takes a fraction of the time.

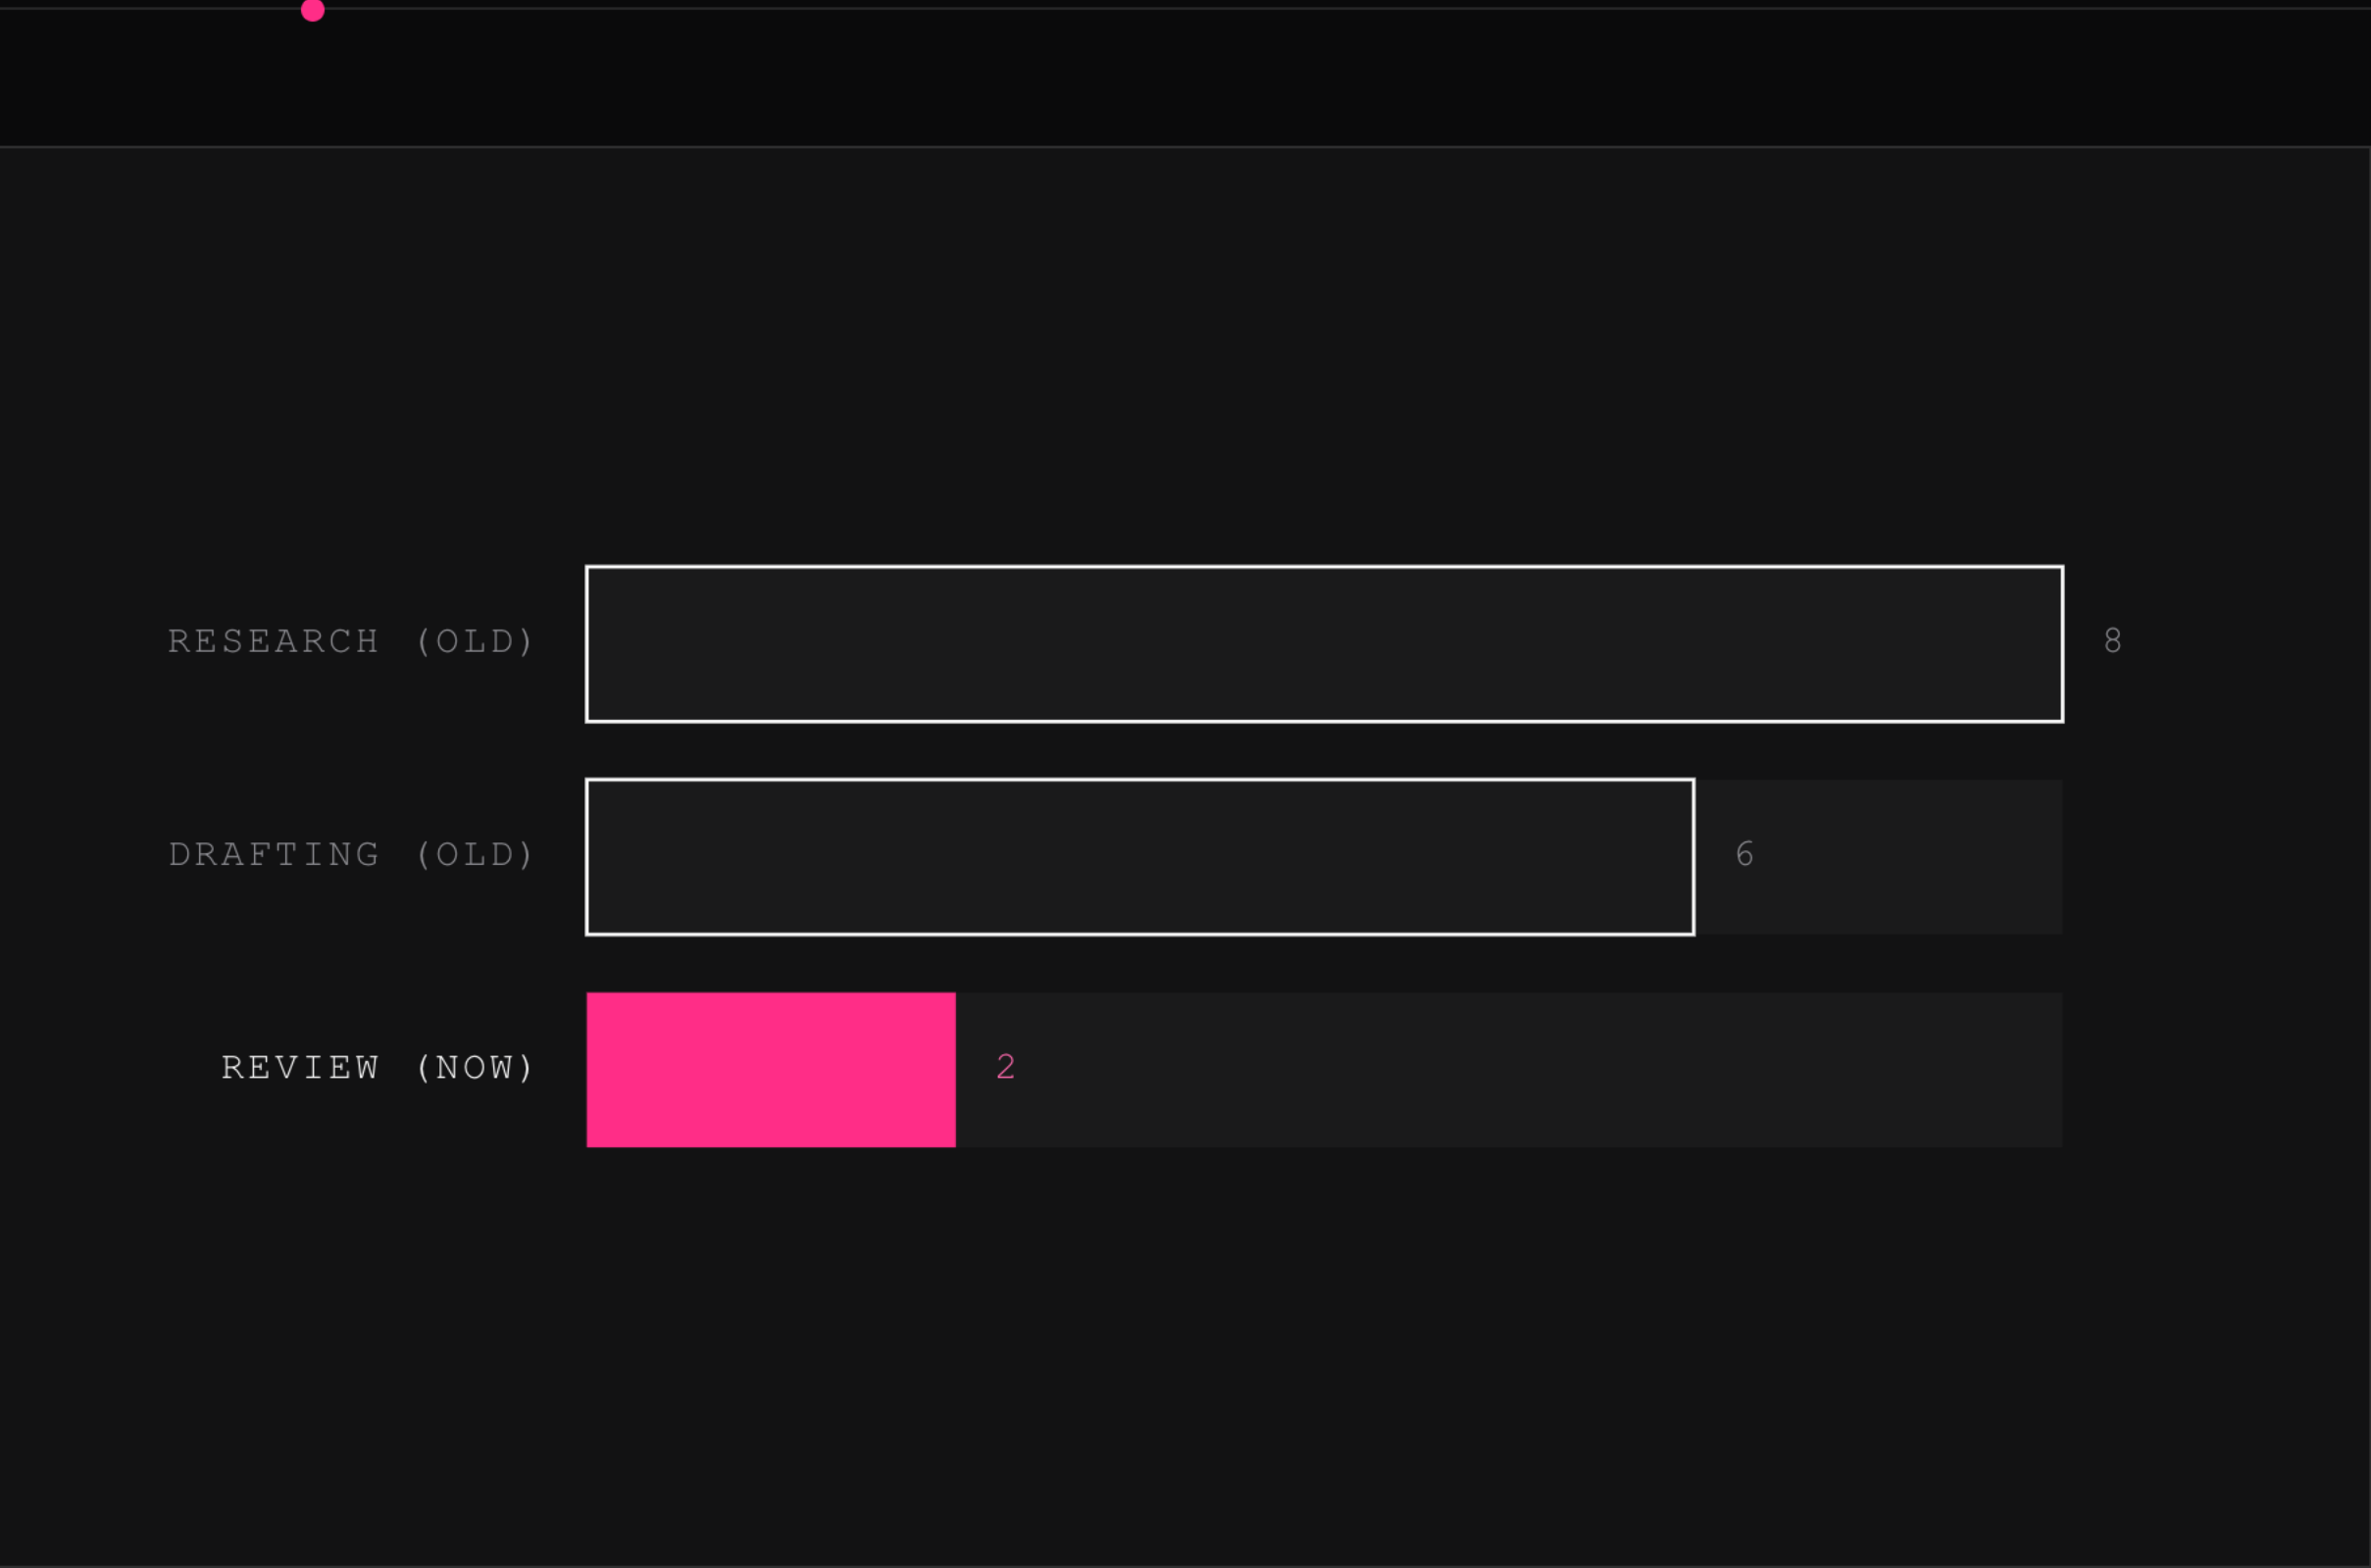

FIG. 4 · VERYDIAN

I'm the orchestrator now, not the operator

I write about what changes when you stop doing the work and start owning the outcome.

FOLLOW THE BUILD